The Importance Of
Obstetrician Approved
Pregnancy Products

Dr. Michele D. Brown
M.D., Obstetrician

A recent major recall of pregnancy products that contained alcohol preservatives known to cause respiratory problems and GI distress occurred in the market. US health advocacy groups have put out warnings that pregnant women should reduce their exposure to any packaging that contains Bisphenol A (BPA) to avoid passing this chemical to their unborn child. With 4 Million Pregnancies per year in the U.S., this emphasizes the importance of obstetrician approved pregnancy products.

Obstetricians have access to special physician database health risk lines and reproduction toxicity reports and can guarantee the safety of ingredients and products. Recognizing a need for safe and effective products, I developed Beauté de Maman, the first and only line of natural, herbal and safe products formulated specifically for the pregnant women by an obstetrician and tested them on hundreds of patients to ensure the best quality product.

Competitive products are designed by non-medical business people many with imported products, under different government guidelines. Some are designed by large companies that deal primarily with baby skin care products who have decided to branch into the maternal arena. The Beauté de Maman line is strictly maternal and aims to deal only with the problems associated with the pregnant woman from years of experience caring for thousands of pregnant women.
